TATTOOING REVIVED

WAR SCENES AND HEROES NOW PICTURED ON MANY ARMS.

Many Soldiers and Sailors Will Wear For Life Designs Which Remind Them of Their War Experiences Electric Tattooer Makes It Easy.

The war has caused a revival of the tattooing fad. Probably nine out of every ten men who served in the naval reserves were prompted to acquire somewhere on their epidermis at least one of those blue and purple designs which mark the true sailor. Most of them have achieved their ambition.

It is not a difficult achievement. Any Jack Tar can direct you to a tattoo artist in almost any deep sea port, although a landman might search for a long time without running across one.

From the naval reserve men the fad spread to the volunteer soldiers. The rough riders were especially taken with the idea, and many a hero of San Juan Hill has gone back to the prairie or clubroom with quaint emblems pricked indelibly on his arms or chest.

With the soldiers a head of Liberty with shield, olive wreath and stars seems to be the favorite. Jack Tar has a wide variety of designs. He gives much thought to the selection of the particular picture which he is to wear for life. He is full of sentiment too. The design which seems to appeal to him most is the picture of "the man behind the gun." This picture, worked out in red and blue inks, pleases him greatly. He has it pricked on his forearm, usually the right one, or on his chest.

Portraits of Dewey, Schley, Sampson and "Fighting Bob" Evans are also popular. Dewey, of course, leads the list, and it would be difficult to guess just how many hundred times his picture has been pricked in the skin of his admirers.

Tattooing is no longer the tedious and painful operation it used to be. A New York tattooer named O'Reilly has invented a little electrical instrument which does the work quickly and al-

THE MOST POPULAR TATTOO DESIGN. most painlessly. Until half a decade ago Mr. O'Reilly used for tattooing the ordinary instrument which had been common property in Burma, Japan, the Sandwich Islands and Chinese Tartary for a thousand years; in fact, wherever tattooing has been practiced.

This instrument differed somewhat in form in various lands, but substantially it was of a single type, consisting of four very fine needles placed close to one another in a row and bound together very tightly. The blunt ends were firmly fixed in a handle, leaving the pointed ends exposed for about one-quarter of an inch. The operator would dip this set of needles in ink and then prick the skin of his customer, and four little holes would result. Then it would be dipped in ink again and four more holes would be pricked. This process was repeated over and over until the design was finished, and a slow, tedious, irritating process it was.

When the convenient little electric motors came into general use, Mr. O'Reilly began to think of some way whereby the slow hand needle might be improved upon, and finally he invented and patented his tattooer, which performs work with a rapidity almost incredible. The operating end of this machine consists of a fine needle which is made to dart in and out of its case at a rate of speed approaching a thousand strokes a minute. After the work is finished it is bathed with witch hazel to prevent soreness, and in some cases a little sweet oil is used.

With an electric tattooer it would be possible to turn out a "tattooed man" such as are exhibited in side shows in two or three weeks. Formerly the work occupied several years and was a matter of physical endurance. An ordinary design can be executed in half an hour and a very intricate one in the course of an afternoon.

There is one sailor in the United States navy who bears on his broad chest a complete and accurate picture of the battle of Santiago, in which he fought as one of the men behind the guns. It was made from photographs of the fight and shows Cervera's fleet strung out along the coast.

To Aid Starving Cubans.

A movement for the relief of the starving Cubans by means of carefully administered industrial enterprise has just been started in New York on a plan suggested by Mr. William Willard Howard, which, it is said, has the cordial endorsement of clergymen of all denominations and of philanthropists. It is intended to substitute opportunities for honest work, to be paid for at the market rates for labor, in place of indiscriminate and harmful gifts of "free soup and old clothes," and to avoid pauperizing the beneficiaries and making the Cubans a nation of beggars.

Mr. Howard's plan, which has been taken up by an association formed for the purpose—the Cuban Industrial Relief fund, Tribune building, New York—is based on his two years' experience in relief work for the Armenians of eastern Turkey. In the carrying out of the plan Mr. Howard will have the assistance of the Rev. Herbert M. Allen, who was his chief associate in Armenian relief work. The plan's official prospectus in outline is as follows:

First.—To secure good farming land where the need of the poor is.

Second.—To station there a capable American superintendent, with implements, seeds and funds sufficient to employ a considerable number of men.

Third.—To set at work all the able-bodied poor and pay them full market rates for their labor.

Fourth.—To raise common food crops, sell them in the best available market and with the proceeds continue the employment as long only as the need exists, using the same money over and over again.

Fifth.—To return the farmers to their own former homes as soon as they are physically, mentally and financially able to re-establish their plantations.

While inspired by charitable motives, the whole plan is to be operated purely as a business transaction, in which the laborer will feel that he has rendered service for all he has received and that he has not been robbed of his manhood by being treated like a beggar. The money thus invested (and it will be invested, not spent) will save the United States millions that would otherwise be used to clothe and feed an idle, though suffering, population.

The success of the plan is assured by the success of the industrial relief work done for the Armenians under the same auspices, and the practical wisdom and essential benevolence of this kind of relief explain why the plan has received the cordial endorsement of clergymen of all denominations and of philanthropists generally.

The responsibility of Americans for these suffering Cubans is a direct result of the Spanish war. We have saved them from their former oppressors, and we are now bound to save their bodies from starvation and their manhood from the degrading effects of pauperism through unwise charity. As a Christian duty to those for whose deliverance we went to war and as a patriotic duty to our own country, which a depopulated Cuba would disgrace before the nations, it would seem that we should furnish the Cuban Industrial Relief fund with the money for its work—doing it promptly in order that the initial purchases of implements and seed may be made at once.

Why Bill Was Discomfited.

Blizzard Bill went up to the new parson's house with an unpleasant errand in view. He meant to run him out of town.

Three hours later he met Ginger Joe. Ginger looked him over.

"Grizzly or dynamite?" he softly inquired.

Bill looked at Ginger through his half shut eyes.

"You're a durned pretty sort o' friend, you are!" he hoarsely growled. "Why in merry thunder didn't you tell me the parson was an army chaplain?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Some idea of the travel in Greater New York may be obtained from Chief Engineer Roebling's warning that the Brooklyn bridge threatens to break down under it.

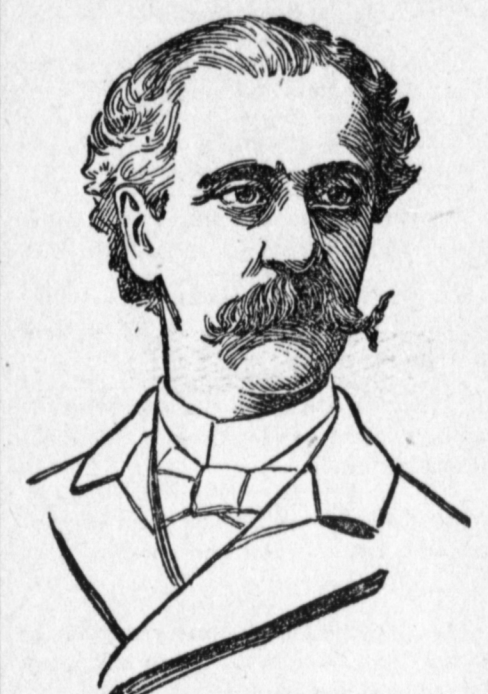

OBERLIN'S PRESIDENT.

Dr. Barrows Chosen as the Head of Ohio's Big College.

Dr. John Henry Barrows, who has been chosen president of Oberlin, the famous Ohio college, is a well known minister and lecturer. For more than 14 years he was pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago and was also connected with the Chicago university as lecturer in the department of comparative religion.

Dr. Barrows is best known as the chief promoter of the parliament of religions held at the World's fair. He is a noted student and somewhat of a traveler, having made an extended tour of Asia, from which he returned about a year ago. He has written several books and has lectured in many large cities.

Dr. Barrows is of a New England family which settled in Medina, Mich.,

where he was born. He was graduated from Olivet college in Michigan in 1867. During his college course his attention was directed to modern and ancient history and literature. His theological education was received at the Yale, Union and Andover seminaries.

The two years succeeding his graduation from the schools of divinity he spent in active religious and educational work in Kansas. His first charge was the Congregational church of North Topeka, and he afterward preached at the First Congregational church at Springfield, Mo.

The Keely Secret.

The recent death of Mr. Keely, the unduly celebrated depository of the Keely motor service, does not at all dispose of the mystery which for so many years has interested and aggravated the world. It now appears that he has left behind him important papers which clearly set forth the whole secret, and these papers are to be placed in the hands of the principal stockholders of the Keely scheme by the executors. That some of the most intelligent and influential of these stockholders have continued to believe in Mr. Keely's discovery in spite of the misfortunes and delays that attended it is not the least wonderful part of the whole business. Several of these men are practical scientists and mechanics and have had opportunities of learning a great deal of Mr. Keely's invention. They have placed before the public their undiminished confidence in the ultimate success of the motor.

It is this confidence or credulity, or call it what you will, that, surviving all opposition, serves to keep alive the strange interest in the Keely project. To the general public there is something specially fascinating in a scientific mystery. For years the imaginative writers have been educating the popular mind up to the belief that modern science was on the point of making some kind of discovery that would revolutionize man's powers over the forces of nature. Not alone has Jules Verne and Louis Figuer flooded the world with the dreams of physical science, but Pasteur and Roentgen and others have partly realized these dreams, and Edison has not been far behind them. When, therefore, a mysterious man claimed to have got hold of an unknown force and found practical men ready not only to believe in him, but to invest thousands of dollars in his scheme, the public may well be forgiven for looking on with an eager expectation. It is very much to be hoped that now the mystery will be all cleared up by giving the whole of the Keely speculation to the world.

A Thorough Sport.

The Kaiser's Problems.

Kaiser Wilhelm on his return from Palestine recently must have been amazed at the contrast which the social and political conditions of his seething country presented to those of the orient. He came out of a land where it is always afternoon, where the people still wear the costumes of Abraham and drink of the cisterns which their fathers built and bathed in—a people crushed, patient, uncomplaining and fatalistic, with few ambitions and a few simple wants, governed by an ancient despotism which suppresses all individualism and punishes all independence. From this memorial land, with its Dead sea and dying Caesar, he came face to face with the portentous unrest of Germany, with anti-Semites clamoring and scheming, Ultramontanes growling at his Lutheran propaganda, junkers complaining of the Poles, the Danes in North Sleswick demanding the expulsion of other Danes, the Alsations protesting against a dictatorship in Alsace-Lorraine, the radicals insisting on reforms and the agrarians demanding a reactionary tariff.

The coming session of the imperial diet is already big with storms, and Russia does not look with amiable eye upon the Kaiser's oriental flirtation. One thing is certain, the German emperor is the European center of the most profound interests, and he does not appear to be a man upon whom the enervating examples of the orient can have much effect. He has a tremendous task before him in his own internal problem, now that Germany has adopted the policy of colonial expansion, and these problems threaten to become of far more vital concern than his foreign relations. But under it all we may be sure of a national patriotism and love of country peculiarly Teutonic in its stanchness and which no passing antagonisms of party or policies will ever quite extinguish. The whole of this hobnobbing visit to the sultan is regarded grimly by the landwehr as a piece of necessary court flummery that veils a serious German purpose, and, save here and there a few querulous but guarded protests from the liberal press, the matter has been treated as an allowable imperial diversion.

The End of Spanish Rule.

In accepting the terms offered by the United States Spain has bent herself with all of the ancient dignity that she could summon to the inevitable. There never was much doubt at Washington of the ultimate result, and our country has now to adjust itself to the sudden possession of vast eastern domains. There is no reason to believe that, with the single exception of Great Britain, and possibly Japan, the nations of Europe and Asia look upon the entrance of the United States into the eastern question to stay with anything like satisfaction. Already there are semiofficial predictions made abroad of new complications. But from her earliest history as a nation the United States has always had a surprise up her sleeve, and it is quite within her precedents that she will astonish Europe in the management of the Philippines.

There are some indications, on the other hand, that Spain is not to be altogether a loser by her recent war. The industrial interests of the Spanish provinces are coming to the conclusion that the series of mistakes and mismanagements beginning in the Cuban rebellion and terminating in the war with the United States could only be the result of a governmental and social system wholly behind the age of the world, and that it is time for some kind of national reform. There have been several important meetings of capitalists, manufacturers and others in various parts of Spain who expressed themselves freely and radically in view of the bankrupt condition of the state, and now the news comes that this spirit is spreading and is being taken up by the people themselves. The Spaniards are not as melodramatic as the French, and they have a prodigious pride of character, so that even their late enemies can afford to hope that they will effect a peaceable revolution that will insure not only freedom and light, but honesty and economy. In that direction lies the rehabilitation of Spain, and when it is effected it will not do to say that she has not profited by her misfortune.

He Was Slow.

They had been "keeping company" for eight years, and, when he finally proposed and was accepted, in the ardor of his enthusiasm he exclaimed, "Darling, you are worth your weight in gold!"

With almost cruel facetiousness she replied, "That is saying a good deal for it was an awful long wait."

STILL AT HIS POST.

Dr. Milburn, the Senate's Blind Chaplain, Returns to His Duties.

When congress assembled the other day, the session of the senate was opened, as it has been for many years, with a prayer by Rev. W. H. Milburn, the blind chaplain, who has long been one of the most striking figures in Washington.

Chaplain Milburn has just returned from a lecturing tour in Canada and New York state. In spite of his 75 years he still continues to follow the lecture circuit for several weeks each year, speaking every evening in a different place and traveling part of each day. He is still vigorous and finds it impossible to remain idle between sessions.

Chaplain Milburn is in many ways a remarkable man. Although he lost his sight through an accident early in his childhood, he studied for the ministry and fitted himself for the pulpit. He was chosen chaplain of the house of representatives in 1845 and continued to hold that position for ten years. Then for 30 years he traveled through this country and Great Britain, delivering sermons and lectures almost daily. In 1885 he returned to Washington and resumed his chaplaincy. Later he was made chaplain of the senate.

His acquaintance with the public men of this country since the days of Daniel Webster and Henry Clay has been and is still, for that matter, probably more extensive than that of any other man of affairs in Washington today, the venerable ex-Secretary and Senator Sherman not excepted.

With the members of congress Dr. Milburn has always been exceedingly popular, Republicans, Democrats and Populists alike all claiming his friendship and regard, while few indeed are the visitors to Washington during the sessions of congress who fail to hear the good chaplain offer his morning prayer to Almighty God as the opening exercise of our national legislature.

Hobson's Choice.

Naval Constructor Hobson, who is already a military hero, has executed a feat which makes him suddenly a moral hero. He has refused $50,000 offered him by a New York lecture bureau to lecture. The reasons which he gives for his refusal are so extraordinary as to take away the breath of the speaker after popular fame. He says: "Before the sinking of the Merrimac my lectures would not have been worth more than 50 cents. The sinking of the Merrimac seems to have made them worth $50,000. The work which so suddenly raised my stock in literary trade was done in simple execution of my duty as an officer, and I do not feel that I have a right to use the performance of that duty for my financial betterment. I therefore decline the offer."

This is so squarely opposed to popular methods that it is naturally an astonisher. The man actually refuses to receive $50,000 for simply doing his duty. He points out that the accidental sinking of the Merrimac has nothing whatever to do with his intrinsic ability to lecture. He seems to have struck the lecture bureau and the whole system of literary star catchers on the cheek. Let us try and fancy, if we can, the actress, who having obtained a divorce and a good deal of notoriety, suddenly receiving an offer from a theatrical manager of $1,000 a week. Let us imagine her saying: "Before I obtained this divorce I was only worth $60 a week. The decision of the court has not raised my acting ability one cent, and I refuse the offer." This is unthinkable.

It is just possible that a man trained in a school to do his duty may take a view of these things altogether different from that of the man who is trained to do the public.

The Enquirer thinks that it will be a disgrace to the United States to pay Spain anything for the Philippines, no matter whether it is called indemnity or return for expenses on public works. Spain can not deliver the goods we are trying to pay her for. She can not even get them to us in chains. She has never been able to catch them.

The administration, just as has been predicted, turned down Major General Fitzhugh Lee, when it came to appointing a Military and Civil Governor of Havana. His selection for the place is Major General Ludlow. General Lee has been assigned to command the troops and exercise military control over Havana province, exclusive of the city.

The Conduct of the War.

The war investigating commission has accumulated a great mass of contradictory evidence, out of which there will sooner or later come a voluminous report that very few persons will read. That the report will be satisfactory to either side in the controversy is hardly to be expected, but it will bear evidence to the fact that while the war was on everybody was allowed to express his opinion to the extent of his patriotism or his disgust. There never was a war before in which public opinion and private ability so freely unbosomed themselves. Every volunteer was a correspondent, every officer was a critic, every nurse a reviewer and every newspaper a military expert. Every move of the secretary of war was watched by millions of eager eyes; every intention of the administration was scrutinized and canvassed openly. Mistakes were inevitable. The sudden conversion of 200,000 citizens into soldiers was no easy feat, especially as the citizens were for the most part in the habit of freeing their minds and avoiding privations. Not every man in the population could fight, but there was not a man in the population who could not pronounce an opinion. It is worth while to think of this now as a peculiarity and perhaps a safeguard of our institutions. It brings us back to the fact that even war is necessarily a matter of and for the people in this country, from the details of which they do not propose to be excluded. It is almost impossible to conceive of a war going very far in opposition to the people under such a constant investigating committee, and no president could for a moment adopt the tactics of Louis Napoleon without instant and widespread exposure. There were indeed some of us who pretended to think that the war ought to be conducted by experts without our knowledge. We were to shut our eyes and ears and ask no questions. But such a scheme will not work in America. Everybody claims to be a stockholder in the events and insists upon being on the grand stand. It is now plain that, whatever the sins of commission or of omission, there could be nothing done in the dark, for every man, woman and child carried a flashlight. This looks almost melodramatic now when we compare it with the suppression of public opinion in Madrid, the subversion of justice in Paris, the arrest of editors in Berlin and the muzzling of mouths in St. Petersburg.

LIEUT. COCHRAN PROMOTED.

Now Captain of Company L, Fourth Kentucky—Effort Being Made to Have Regiment Mustered Out.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 12.—Gov. Bradley to-day promoted Lieutenant Horace J. Cochran, of Maysville, to be Captain of Company L, Fourth Kentucky, vice B. C. Golden, resigned. James M. Carroll was appointed to be First Lieutenant of Company B, to succeed Cochran. These appointments were made on recommendation of Colonel Colson.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 12.—Letters from a number of the soldiers in the Fourth Kentucky, now stationed at Anniston, Ala., indicate that an organized effort is being made to bring every possible influence to bear on the Washington authorities to induce them to issue a mustering out order. The soldiers are writing letters to every influential politician of their acquaintance asking them to aid in securing the order. One of these letters was received here to-day by ex-Congressman John D. White, and it recites the fact that four-fifths of the privates are in favor of mustering out at once.

In October Mr. White wrote to the War Department. To-day, two months after he wrote his letter, he received an answer, saying his request had been referred to the Colonel of the Fourth Kentucky, who said the soldiers were "well fed and clothed, and only a few wished to be mustered out." Col. Colson, of the Fourth, is still a member of Congress, and consequently has a strong pull in Washington, so Mr. White thinks no attention will be paid to the appeals from the privates as long as a vote is needed for the army and navy bill and other appropriation bills.

A State Police Force.

A bill has already been drawn in New York for presentation to the legislature looking to the establishment of a state constabulary. Although the primary object of this bill is obviously political and is urged on the ground that it will prevent election frauds, there can be no doubt that a state constabulary, once free from political domination, would be a much needed protection to life and property throughout sparsely settled districts. Outside of the cities there is little or no police protection, and crime is constantly committed in out of the way places, the perpetrators of which are never arrested, or, if they are, it is by calling in the aid of agents from the cities or by rude posses suddenly formed, which are very apt to be actuated by the desire of sudden vengeance rather than the desire to uphold the law. There is no good reason why the state should not have a constabulary, except the conviction that it would be made a tool of one or the other political party when in power.

Charlie's Authority.

"I've called you three times, Charlie," said a mother to her little son, "and I'm very much annoyed because of your failure to answer me."

"Well, mamma," replied Charlie, who was very fond of reading Bible stories, "you ain't any better than the Lord, are you?"

"No, of course not," answered the mother in surprise. "Why did you ask that?"

"Because," replied the little fellow, "the Lord called Samuel three times, and he didn't get mad about it."—Chicago News.

BIG FIRE.

J. W. Watson & Co.'s and J. H. Rogers & Co.'s Business Houses Destroyed.

It Was Five Below Zero and Firemen Worked Under Great Difficulty—The Losses and Insurance.

One of the most destructive fires that has visited Maysville in years occurred at an early hour this morning.

The wholesale liquor establishments of J. W. Watson & Co. and J. H. Rogers & Co. on the east side of Market street, north of Second, were completely gutted by the flames.

The fire was first discovered by Mr. John D. Roe and Mr. Jas. Molen shortly after 1 o'clock in the building occupied by Watson & Co. The temperature was five degrees below zero at the time, and the extreme cold greatly retarded the firemen in their work.

Fortunately there was no wind blowing. Had there been a stiff breeze under such circumstances the entire square would have been endangered.

The fire was burning fiercely by the time the department reached the scene, and although the men worked heroically, the Watson building, a three-story brick, with stock of liquor contained in it, was a pretty complete wreck in an hour or so.

The old two-story brick building just south of this, and occupied by Mr. D. Hechinger as a branch clothing and shoe store, was badly damaged by the south wall of the Watson building collapsing and falling on it.

About an hour after the fire was first discovered the flames spread to the three-story brick building on the north occupied by J. H. Rogers & Co. A second alarm was sounded. The firemen worked with grim determination, but much of the hose was frozen up by this time, and notwithstanding all their efforts the building was badly damaged.

The fire was still burning at 9 o'clock. It was feared for a time that the large new four-story wholesale liquor house of O. H. P. Thomas & Co. next north of the Rogers & Co. establishment would also be destroyed, but the fire is under control at this writing.

The building occupied by Watson & Co. belongs to Mrs. Geo. T. Hunter. It was insured for $5,500—$2,500 in the Orient, J. C. Everett, agent, and $3,000 in the Northwestern National, W. R. Warler, agent.

The building occupied by Rogers & Co. belongs to Mrs. Mary T. Cox and was insured for $2,000 in Curran & Cox's agency.

Watson & Co. had about 100 barrels of whisky on hand. They were insured for $12,500—$1,000 in the Hamburg-Bremen, J. C. Everett, agent, and $10,000 in W. R. Warler's agency, $2,500 in the Continental, $2,500 in the Western of Toronto, $2,000 in the Home and $3,000 in the New Hampshire. Also $1,500 in the New York Underwriters, W. E. Newell, agent.

Rogers & Co. had between 300 and 400 barrels of whisky on hand. They were insured for $11,500 in Mr. Warler's agency, $5,000 in the Germania, $4,000 in the Home and $2,500 in the Continental. They were also insured for about $10,000 in Dr. John T. Fleming's agency, and for $4,500 in J. C. Everett's agency—$2,000 in Orient and $2,500 in the National.

Mr. Hechinger's stock was insured for $3,000—$1,000 in the Orient, Mr. Everett agent, $1,000 in the Manchester, G. W. Sulser, agent, and $1,000 in the Philadelphia Underwriters, Boulden & Parker, agents. The stock was valued at $4,000.

The building occupied by Mr. Hechinger belongs to the Langhorne estate, and was not insured.

J. E. Darragh & Co., who conducted a retail liquor business in the same building with Watson & Co., sustained a loss of about $500. It was not learned whether they have any insurance.

The building of O. H. P. Thomas & Co. was also slightly damaged. Fully insured.

It is not known how the fire originated. The total loss is placed at between $40,000 and $50,000.

Some of the firemen suffered greatly from the cold. The ice was piled up several feet deep on the pavement in front of the buildings and the walls were coated.

The Central Hotel proprietors served twenty-two gallons of hot coffee to the firemen, which alleviated their sufferings somewhat.

While the fire was in progress the Schatzmann building, opposite, caught fire from a defective flue, but the blaze was discovered and soon extinguished.

Mr. Omar Dodson's buildings were also slightly damaged. Loss fully insured.

Typhoid Fever Carries Off Three Members of Mr. James W. Evans' Family, and Two More Are Ill.

Mr. Joshua B. Burgess received the sad news of the death of his nephew, Walter Evans, aged twenty, of Ripley, this morning at 1 o'clock, and also of his niece, Miss Mary George Evans, aged six years. The latter died Monday. Both were victims of typhoid fever.

They were children of Mr. James W. Evans, formerly of Fern Leaf. Their mother, it will be remembered, died a few weeks ago of the same disease, and the remaining two children are critically ill also of the same disease.

It is one of the saddest cases on record. The funeral of Walter will occur Thursday at 10 a. m. at Ripley.

Items from Potoskey. Snow is plenty and the sleighing is fine. Steamers have laid up for the winter on account of ice. Bear are more numerous than usual, one killed near Charlevoix last week that weighed 200 pounds net. Over 100 deer have been killed in that county in the last few weeks, and venison is plenty and cheap. A large hotel is under contract to be built between Roaring Brook and Wequetonsing and another at Bear Lake. The Cushman House is to be enlarged by extending a wing up Lake street. Seventy-five thousand bushels of potatoes have been shipped from Potoskey up to this time. One firm is storing 15,000 bushels in their cellar for spring market. They will soon be catching plenty of fish through holes cut in the ice on the bay. They will soon be running their sleighs on the ice driven by the wind at the moderate gate of eighty miles an hour. Don't you, Mr. Editor, and the editor of the Paris Citizen, want to go up again, this time in mid winter? Perhaps he would take his overcoat this time.

Anderson Williams fell from a load of tobacco last week, injuring his hip badly. He will be laid up most of the winter.

J. A. Walton has contracted with A. Williams for a lot, price $900, upon which he will build as soon as the weather will permit.

THOSE INDICTMENTS

Against Non-Resident Property Owners. What One of the Parties Has to Say.

Editor Evening Bulletin: I saw in the BULLETIN of a few days since that "Frank Landers" was indicted by the grand jury of Mason County for not registering his Mason County land in the Clerk's office. I suppose that is intended for me. This is very strange; I have been owning land in Mason County for 40 years, have given it in to the Assessor regularly when called upon, and paid the tax every year. Why should it be brought up at this late date? I have never been notified to register!

I'll tell you, some poor "dickens" has ferreted that out in order to get a fee out of it. I know it was some poor trash; for no one ever calls me "Landers" but trash. It is a pleasure to me to be called Lander, especially by the ladies, for they can call it nicer and more unctuous than any one else. But to be called by the name "Landers!" May the good Lord deliver me. Dec. 10th, 1898. J. F. LANDER.

Loose clothes and downy cushions bring only a negative sort of comfort to the women who are suffering with some disease or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Some clothes and some positions make the pain and the discomfort seem less. Perhaps the nerves are most affected and this in turn disturbs the digestion. Nothing will ever completely relieve but a radical cure. The start of so-called "female complaints" may be a very slight thing indeed. It may be that in the beginnings some small hygienic measures would stop the trouble. Certainly at this time, a little bit of the right medicine would stop it. When the trouble becomes worse, it is harder to cure, but still it can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will positively cure any trouble of this character. It may be absolutely relied upon. It affords lasting relief to a woman whose natural modesty has kept her from consulting a physician.

Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

Diseases of Memory.

Writing of diseases of the memory, a Russian doctor gives an interesting account of some of the eccentricities of his patients. In the case of a literary man, some time previous to his seeking advice he had been troubled with an absolute failure of memory.

He could remember exactly everything he had done more than a year ago, but occurrences of later date he had entirely forgotten. When attacked by the disease, he was engaged in writing a novel, which he had half finished. He remembered the first half, but could not tell how he had intended to finish it. He was at last unable to remember whether he had dined.

In another case the patient tells of his travels, but repeats the tales a dozen times an hour, with the same phrases. He would play a game of cards carefully and well; five minutes afterward he would mention that he had not played for weeks. He would say "Good morning!" when the doctor made his first visit of the day, but did not remember the visit three minutes later if the doctor again looked in.—London Tit-Bits.

Really a Kind Man.

"Did you see anything of a pocket-book that I dropped somewhere in the bedroom I occupied last night, land-lord?"

"Any money in it?"

"About £100."

"Yes, sir. Here is your pocketbook, with the money. The maid was honest enough to bring it to me, and I looked it up in the safe."

"Ah, very correct proceeding, very. I had intended placing the money in the bank this morning, where it would have been drawing 4 per cent. As a reward for your honesty I will say nothing about the interest for the time it has been in your possession, and you can make it square with the chambermaid. There is nothing small about me when I run across a man who seems to be trying to do what's right."—London Telegraph.

An Old Missouri Bridge.

There is an old lattice bridge across the North Fabius creek, near Monticello, Lewis county, that was built in the year 1845. It is said that it was the first bridge of the kind built in north Missouri. The timber was taken from government land and was sawed into lumber at a water mill and with whip-saw. The contractors were seven months on the job, for which they received $100.—Kansas City Journal.

"Well," said Pat chuckling, "I've just ch'ated this old railway company nicely."

"How so?"

"Why, I've taken a return ticket, and I've no intention of going back at all."—London Punch.

Fish in Nantucket.

The residents of Nantucket are said to be so well satisfied with their small island that they care but little for the outside world. Naturally many of the men are employed in fishing, and the old fishermen delight to tell of the foolish questions asked by the "rusticators" who visit Nantucket in summer. One summer visitor, in turn, tells this story of the town fish market:

"Have you any salmon?" I asked of the old salt, who was sharpening a knife.

"No, ma'am," he answered, and then he added, in a pleasantly condescending way, "We don't sell nothin but fish here."

"Well," I responded, "salmon is fish, you know. They are caught in all"—But he interrupted me.

"Land! I know folks eat all sorts of things. I hear about 'em eatin' frogs and callin' them fish. Folks are strange in their eatin, same as they be in their clothes," with a critical glance at my bicycle skirt, "but all the fish that folks ought to eat can be caught right round these shores. Can't I sell you a nice bluefish, that ain't been out'n the water more'n an hour?"

Not knowing any better way to regain his good opinion, I purchased the bluefish and went meekly home.—Youth's Companion.

Love Taps.

Marital relations in Ireland are as a rule of the most harmonious character, and if a husband and wife do fall out occasionally and even resort to blows they think nothing the worse of each other in the end. Pill Lane is a classic locality in Dublin, which might with some truth be described as the Billingsgate of the Irish metropolis. "That's a fine black eye you've got, missis," said a man to a woman sitting over her basket of fish in Pill Lane. "Fightin', I suppose, ag'in." "No, I wasn't fightin'," replied the fishwoman. "Himself (her husband) it was that gave me that," and, facing fiercely round on her questioner, she added, "and I'd like to know who had a better right."

A laborer, out of employment, applied for outdoor relief for himself and his wife at the North Dublin union. "Well, my good fellow, we must have evidence that you are legally married," said the chairman of the relief committee. "Begor, sir, I've the best proof in the wurld," said the applicant, and bending his head he displayed a scar on his skull. "Does yer honner think," he added, "I'd be after takin' that abuse from any wan but a wife?"—Macmillan's.
